Bath towel	Rescuer needs rescuing.	Father of 4 spent 24 hours in Lismore rescuing people only to discover he and his family needed to be rescued in the dark from their home, a shed he had converted on the family property. Floods have not reached this level in living memory. They escaped with nothing but the clothes on their backs. They lost everything they had worked to lift to the second level of their house & even lost the cars they had moved to higher ground. Sadly the 2 family dogs & chickens could not fit into the boat. Only 1 chicken survived. They stayed with friends for a while (16 people altogether) but could not find anything to rent in Evans Head where they work & have a small business, so have had to return home and live in the gutted shed to try and rebuild. Everyone is traumatized. Whenever their preschooler sees water laying on the ground he shakes & clings to them asking where the water is coming from. the business has struggled through Covid- now this!
